Ahoy, friend!

We're so glad you're here.

This booklet will help you follow along with the audio, word for word. Press play, snuggle up, and follow the story with your fingers—or take turns with someone reading the parts out loud together.

Here are the characters you'll meet:

SCARLETT The brand-new deckhand, learning to be a pirate
POUTINE The good-natured, bookish first mate
CAPTAIN Fearless, treasure-obsessed, and telling us this tale
SPOKESMAN Our friendly announcer, welcoming us aboard

A few things to know before you set sail:

A treasure box tells you what sounds to listen for.

When you see the anchor, it means the Captain is telling YOU part of the story.

See musical notes? It's time to sing along!

To keep the fun going after the story is done, enjoy the activity pages!

Love,
Scarlett
and her merry friends.

Prologue: The Crew

CAPTAIN Right then, First Mate Poutine. Up the gangplank, board the ship. Let this adventure begin!

POUTINE We're nearly ready, Captain, I'm just checking the final list right now. Pickles yes, biscuits, books for me. The bassoons and the bagpipes have been loaded.

CAPTAIN Bagpipes, Poutine???

POUTINE And the accordion's in your Captain's quarters already. And look, there goes the new deckhand, loading the last of the trombones.

CAPTAIN Trombones?! On a pirate ship?

POUTINE Well, this is to be a musical adventure, Sir. And look at how fast that deckhand goes!

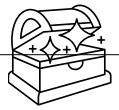

CAPTAIN I don't think I've ever seen a deckhand so small.

POUTINE That tuba's nearly twice her size!

SCARLETT Bomp bomp bomp bomp, I can't wait to hear this big ol' thing!

CAPTAIN What's her name Poutine? Hamlet? Flanigan? Cutlet?

LISTEN FOR: an excited apprentice!

POUTINE Scarlett's her name, Captain. She's an orphan.

SCARLETT Poutine, when we get sailing, can I climb up all these ropes?

POUTINE Well of course, Scarlett. And without her, Captain, we'd be just a crew of two. And a crew of two is hardly a pirate crew.

CAPTAIN Nor's a crew of two and a half. Well, she'll have to do.

POUTINE And we're nearly done with the list, Captain. Writing ink for me, yes, one leather hat, yes that's on the Captain's head. Enormous boots, on his enormous feet -- and that's everything on the list. And yet I feel that something is missing. Do you have your cutlass, Sir?

CAPTAIN Right here. Always.

SCARLETT Hey guys!! Yoo hooo! When do we start sailing!?

CAPTAIN What's little Scapula yelling about?

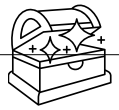

POUTINE Scarlett, Sir, and I believe everything's loaded...

SCARLETT ...and tied down!

POUTINE Is it beard wax we're missing?

SCARLETT Come on guys, let's gooo! Isn't there some kind of map we're looking for?

LISTEN FOR: the moment they remember the map!

POUTINE The map, Captain!

CAPTAIN The map?

POUTINE We're still missing that famous treasure map!

CAPTAIN That's because we haven't found it yet.

POUTINE But surely this time we will!

CAPTAIN Well, you know what they say, First Mate Poutine: "Never get out of the boat...

POUTINE ...yes, unless you're going all the way!"

CAPTAIN We're going all the way this time. Now up into the rigging ya go, and take little Finnigan with ya.

POUTINE Scarlett, Sir.

CAPTAIN Our greatest adventure begins right now!

The Map: Act I

WIND, WIND MY LITTLE SPRING

Wind, wind, my little spring,
I will play my twinkling song,
Though my spring winds down,
I will still love you!

SCARLETT We're off! I had no idea sailing ships sailed so fast!

POUTINE Scarlett, where are you?

SCARLETT And climbing these ropes is like climbing the sky -- I never been any place so high!

POUTINE Captain, have you seen little Scarlett anywhere?

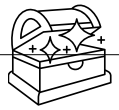

SCARLETT Which way we sailing to anyway? Thisaway? Thataway?

POUTINE Oh, she's up there! She's climbed to the very top of the mast!

SCARLETT North? East? South? West?

POUTINE Whenever you come down, Scarlett, the Captain can explain the plan best.

LISTEN FOR: the Captain’s voice drifting up from his cabin — an old, old story

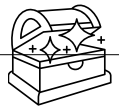

Long ago, an enormous treasure had been buried. An ancient treasure so rich that every pirate the length of the Spanish Main could only speak of it in whispers.

And the ‘treasure map’ that led to it? It vanished completely! And long had I searched for it in vain.

Like all pirates, I had grown up poor, perhaps poorer than most, and even ‘whispers of riches’ seemed to touch my soul, like soft breeze on flame, until I was a raging inferno within, and I knew someday that treasure must be mine.

LISTEN FOR: Pirate line practice — and an accordion starting up

SCARLETT Hear that, Poutine? Captain's down below again, having another one of his bad days.

POUTINE Well, it's a Captain's lot to bellow and rage, Scarlett, and ours to turn it all into wind-filled sails.
And how are those pirate voices coming along?

SCARLETT Aye, Captain!

POUTINE Now, the Captain actually prefers the doubled version.

SCARLETT Aye aye, Captain!

POUTINE Amazing! And the growl!

SCARLETT Arrrrh!

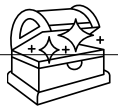

POUTINE It's a bit more guttural -- ARRRH.

SCARLETT ARRRRRHH!

POUTINE We'll, we'll keep working on that, Scarlett.

SCARLETT I'll keep practicing, Poutine.

LISTEN FOR: The sails hauled out – and a big question about the map

POUTINE Now haul out that spanker.

SCARLETT Like this?

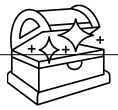

POUTINE Even more. The Captain has ordered full sails ahead.

SCARLETT Poutine, what if this famous treasure map doesn't exist?

POUTINE You mean, what if it's just an old pirate tale? Like the long-lost Ship of Gold?

SCARLETT I don't know what the Ship of Gold is, but how long have you and the Captain been searching anyway?

LISTEN FOR: Map math and crew introductions

THE TREASURE MAP

Oh, for seven years and seven months and seven weeks
and seven days,
We've been looking for the map,
Over seven mountains, seven hills,
seven oceans, seven thrills,
Trying to find out where it's at.
The map is the key to finding where the treasure be.
We'll sail across the line 'tween rich and poor

CAPTAIN We've been too poor too long, First Mate.

POUTINE Sir, the map is the key to finding where the treasure be

CAPTAIN We'll be rich. And lowly pirates never more.

Introducing the crew, crew: the First Mate, the one called 'Poutine,' a sharp enough sailor perhaps, but with a mind ravaged by too many books..

POUTINE Corpulently educated, I prefer.

And the new deckhand, Scarlett — an orphan from some miserable village — and the enormous sea and sky out here had clearly begun to loosen the anchors of her mind..

SCARLETT I know I'm a new pirate, but shouldn't we be worried about sailing right over the edge of the world? Shebooodle!

But loyal as dogs they were. We could have sailed into the jaws of a sea monster, and they would've asked "Where to next, Captain?" Sing it for me, lads — how long have we searched??

THE TREASURE MAP

Seven years and seven months and seven weeks
and seven days,
We've been looking for the map,
Over seven mountains, seven hills,
seven oceans, seven thrills,
Trying to find out where it's at.

SCARLETT Hey, what's that over there!?

Then one day we were sailing in our pirate ship,
A bottle went floating by

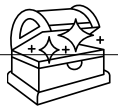

SCARLETT A bottle?

We looked inside and what did we see?
“Can you guess what we saw??”

SCARLETT Why, the contents of the bottle I reckon

The map, the map, the map, the map, the map, the map,
the map, the map, the map, oh myyyy!

LISTEN FOR: A splash and a map unfurling!

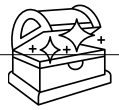

We pulled the bottle from the water. And from the bottle I pulled ancient parchment, and unfurled it to find.. yes, a treasure map — the holy grail of piracy!
A map with a dotted line leading far, far away into unknown seas, ending in a large black X carved upon a tiny island.

SCARLETT And what does the X mean?

CAPTAIN The X? — a beacon, for my ever-burning SOUL.

⚓ A SHORT BREAK: THE CAPTAIN'S LOG ⚓

LISTEN FOR: a mysterious map with strange sentences

SPOKESMAN Let's get back to the Captain, the crew, and their newfound treasure map!

POUTINE The map looks quite ancient, like something from a museum.

SCARLETT It's beautiful. Look at all those words, all squiggly squiggly across the top, hey Poutine!

POUTINE It's some sort of ancient language!

SCARLETT So what's it say?

POUTINE Well, I can read the words... "Si vis quippiam celare... ubi non inveniatur..."

CAPTAIN Gimme that. "...quippiam celare ubiiii... yada yada ... Id plane passim! Non inveniatur...

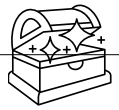

POUTINE How strange.

SCARLETT Ok so what does it all mean?

CAPTAIN The treasure is ours.

POUTINE I'm not so sure about that translation

LISTEN FOR: A storm gathering, sails snapping in the wind

CAPTAIN Up the masts, lads! Joist the jibs! Furl the furlers! With any luck we'll lay pirate boots upon our treasure island a mere fortnight hence!

And so we swung our ship about and sailed straight into the unknown. And that's when our troubles truly began.

SCARLETT Ahhhh-mazing, Poutine. I've hardly been on this ship for long, but already we're sailing to find treasure! Does this happen a lot when you're a pirate? What'll we do with the treasure when we find it? There's soooo much to learn, and I'm just going to learn it all. And someday, I'll be the best pirate ever.

SPOKESMAN And so ends this episode of Scarlett and the Treasure Map. Scarlett, Poutine and the Captain have found a treasure map, and they're sailing hard toward a mysterious island marked with an X. What will happen next? Join us for the next episode and find out!

Act 1: Activities

SAIL TO THE X!

The Captain has ordered full sails ahead. Help the ship find its way through the unknown seas to the island marked X.

Act 1: Activities

LEARN TO TALK LIKE A PIRATE

Poutine and the Captain used some proper pirate words today.
Draw a line from each word to what it means!

THE GANGPLANK	Two weeks
THE SPANKER	A sail at the back of the ship
THE CUTLASS	The walkway for boarding a ship
A DECKHAND	A pirate's trusty curved sword
A FORTNIGHT	A brand-new sailor learning the ropes — like Scarlett!

Now try it out loud: give us your best "ARRRH!" —
Poutine says to make it guttural.
